

ABSTRACT

A golf tee that allows the golfer to put a golf ball on the tee without having to lean over is disclosed. The golf tee has at least three legs and is resilient. The golf tee may also have four legs and a web member extending between the legs of the golf tee. A method for putting a golf ball on the tee is also disclosed.